CITY MATTERS.

Col. John C. Buttrick, of Chillicothe, is at the Arcade.

Hon. J. M. Barrett, and family, of Greene county, passed through the city to-day.

Mr. W. H. Young, a prominent lumber dealer, of Kenton, Ohio, is at the Loggia House.

Morris L. Bettman, Esq., a prominent attorney, of Cincinnati, is registered at the Arcade.

Miss Nettie McClure, of Xenia, is the guest of her brother-in-law, Mr. John Connally, of this city.

A general denial is entered by the entire family in the alleged Grim attempted suicide, briefly mentioned yesterday.

In Common Pleas court, yesterday, the annual and battery case against George Steele was continued, on application and motion of defendant.

Mrs. Mary A. Heckman, aged about 68 years, died last evening at her residence, No. 143 East Main street. Funeral Thursday at two o'clock, p. m. Interment at Ferncliff.

There will be a special communication of Anthony Lodge, No. 455, F. and A. M., for the purpose of conferring the Fellow Craft degree on four candidates. The lodges are enjoying a bit of a boom at this time.

J. W. Pearce, E. M. Arbogast and H. J. Funk are prominently mentioned as candidates for councilman from the Fifth Ward. J. Harvey Hughes and D. W. Stroud are spoken of for School Board. W. R. Callison will be the candidate for assessor, probably without opposition.

The mercury fell thirty-nine degrees between sundown, last night, and nine o'clock this forenoon, at which time it marked four degrees below zero. At seven o'clock this morning it stood at zero. The wind has been blowing a gale ever since last evening, right out to the northwest.

Rev. A. E. Wagner received in the Second Lutheran church, Sunday, twenty-one members. This congregation, which began one year ago with forty-five members, now numbers one hundred and twenty. The Sabbath school which commenced with 130 scholars had an attendance that day of 262.

It is a dull day, indeed, when the patrol force doesn't answer a call from Box 50 and a much duller one yet when there isn't some kind of a breeze in the air, as on York street. Last night it was John Freeman and Susan Robinson again, who were hair pulling and eye-gouging. Freeman was taken on the first run and Robinson on the second.

Council meets in regular session to-night. The third clearing ordinance comes up on third reading and final passage. It is not very likely it will pass in the present shape. There is some talk, also, of engaging counsel to set for the defense in the injunction suit on payment of attorneys' fees in the police commission case, pending and about to come up in Common Pleas.

Col. W. J. White, Adjutant Phillips and Q. M. Smith, of the 7th Regiment, O. N. G., field and staff, visited the Campion City Guard, at their army last night, and witnessed the drill which was one of the company's best. Further arrangements were made for the parade on the 24th. It is likely the Fifth Battery will participate in the parade, on foot, with side arms only.

J. H. Mellinger shipped from Egan, last week, another lot of "challenge" guns, from the following named growers: J. Dunkle, 19 head, weighing 7,475 pounds, an average of 394 pounds; E. Shellenbarger, 56 head, weighing 24,940 pounds, an average of 445 pounds; M. Shellenbarger, 25 head, weighing 10,845 pounds; E. D. Miller, 4 head, weighing 1,990 pounds, all gross. The price paid was $4.75 per hundred weight.

Last night an officer of the regular army came here from Columbus and arrested a colored man named John C. Harris, who has been a resident of this city for a number of years. Fifteen years ago Harris enlisted in the army and served five years. He then re-enlisted but at the end of a year and a half grew tired of army life and ran off. He came to this city and has lived here ever since. He was taken to Columbus at ten o'clock.

At a meeting of the county commissioners, yesterday, in the matter of the petition of A. H. Smith and others for construction of a ditch in Madison township an order was passed approving the same and finding the improvement necessary, under terms of the law. The auditor was instructed to enter the report on the records and Wm. Sharon, as engineer, to make a survey of the line of the proposed improvement. The only business transacted beyond this was the passage of a number of bills and estimates on turnpike work.

Xenia Gazette: "The Clark County Commissioners were down here the other day investigating the workings of our Work House. They talked with our Commissioners of several propositions, but the latter officials were non-committal, as they feared any action on their part might hold them responsible to the city for their share of the Work House expenses. Among other plans proposed, the Clark county folks wanted to know if our people would take their prisoners and board them at 40 cents a day, as that is cheaper than it can be done up there. This arrangement may yet be made."

Urbana Citizen, February 9: "Miss Minna Heath, the accommodating and popular Deputy Clerk of the Court, retired from her duties Saturday evening, with the close of Mr. Matland's term. Miss Heath has filled her place well at the Court House, and is a lady who understood her duties thoroughly, and performed them to the satisfaction of all. She will be missed at the Court House. Miss Heath has accepted a position with Mr. Harry Rabbits in the Clerk's office at Springfield. Miss Heath is a lady who understands the duties of the office, and Mr. Rabbits is to be congratulated in securing so competent an assistant. We hope that their relations will be mutually pleasant."

To the Editor of the Globe-Republic:

About 36 years ago, there was born, not a hundred miles from Columbia, S. C., a black boy, whose name was John Hamilton. His father, who was a slave on a neighboring estate, John was a little, spry fellow, fond of shirking work, to grow through the woods and explore swamps. When he was twelve years old, there was a great deal of talk, among the slaves, about the Union soldiers. Many of them believed the soldiers no better than cannibals, and indeed they were spoken of as cannibals. John was skeptical and curious. He wanted to have a look at the monsters, who, it was reported, were sometimes seen in the swamps. So he haunted the swamps, and was rewarded by discovering a poor half-starved Union soldier who had crept from the prison, at Columbia, and whose bleeding feet had compelled him to rest until they should heal up. John bound up his feet and brought him food, and when he was able to go on piloted him safely to the Union lines, traveling only by night through the swamps of South Carolina and the fastnesses of the Blue Ridge mountains in North Carolina.

Coming back, he met more Union soldiers; and for seven months he kept traveling swamps and mountains, escorting Union soldiers who had escaped from Columbia prison to the Union lines. At length he enlisted in the Union army, the First Colored Heavy Artillery, Company A—Colonel, McGowan; Major, Johnson; Surgeon, Cummins; Captain, A. B. Elliot.

After the war he was mustered out of the service, and took service in the quartermaster's department under Jonas Drury, the weather reporter of this paper, whose duty at that time was removing the remains of Union soldiers who had been killed in skirmishes to the care at Chattanooga. During the great flood in '69 the house John lived in was carried off, and he lost everything, including his discharge, copies of which he paid the notorious Charlie Berry to obtain for him; and which, it is needless to say, he has not yet received.

He has lived in and about Springfield for six years. He is married to a likely woman, whom Mrs. James Anderson, of South Market street, can highly recommend, she having worked for this lady almost weekly for three years. John has worked for Azell Smith, the well known brick-maker, and for Mr. Hunk, the brick-maker. Since last September John has been out of work. The first three weeks after the brick-yard was closed he walked 75 miles through the country looking for work, without success. His wife was confined, and had a long sickness, getting up before she was able, she suffered a relapse, and, before she was able to go about to work, all their little savings were exhausted; and for the first time in his life John has been compelled to ask for help. Daily he has gone the rounds of the shops asking if he could get a job of putting in coal. But going out in the bitter weather, cold and hungry, gave him a severe illness. His second child was ill at the same time, and the poor mother could give them very little attention; for she had to wait to get food.

Now, Christian people, is there no one among you, living in town or in the country, who wish to employ a man and wife to work? Rhoda is a good worker, a good milk and butter maker, and John can do all kinds of labor. Any of the residents of this city named in this will take pleasure in testifying to the characters of these people.

A New Manufacturing Concern "Branching" Out.

Messrs. Grim, Brown & Co., of the Buckeye Novelty Works, commenced the business of manufacturing children's "express" wagons, carts, chariots, sleds, etc., in September last, in the old Driscoll carriage works, in the rear of the Driscoll building on Main street. The firm was composed of Col. W. S. Grim, formerly with Messrs. P. P. Mast & Co., Mr. Henry Baldwin, for 25 years a dry goods merchant in this city, Mr. Geo. W. Brown and Mr. J. W. Allen. The business has grown so rapidly and to so great an extent that the managers of the firm find their present quarters much too small for their purpose, as they cannot produce the goods fast enough to meet the demand. That their facilities for manufacturing may be increased they have decided to organize a stock company and will proceed to procure a charter, as soon as the requisite amount of stock has been subscribed. Col. Grim and Mr. Baldwin (at 21 Fisher street) believe that the new concern will present to the public opportunities for sale and remunerative investment, and will take pleasure in furnishing full information to such persons, having capital to invest, as will call upon them, at the place above mentioned.

A Springfield Lady Married in Florida.

Miss Mattie E. Harris, daughter of Mr. William M. Harris, of this city, who left for Florida a few weeks ago, an invalid, with Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Lent, very rapidly recovered during her stay in the land of flowers, and we now learn that she was married, on the 24th of February, by the Rev. J. R. Griffith, D. D., to Mr. S. F. Smart, of Windsor, Florida. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. Joel Mayne, an uncle of the bride, at De Land, and the newly-married couple are to settle down at once at Windsor, situated a few miles from Interlachen.

The National Reform League will hold a convention in this city Tuesday evening, March 3, and Wednesday, March 4, day and evening. A programme has been prepared with papers by prominent reformers, among them President S. A. Ott, of Wittenberg College, and Rev. A. B. Leonard, D. D., of this city.

The net fishing in the Little Miami, about Morrowton and Ft. Ancient, was very successful during the late break-up in the ice. A gentleman passed through the city to-day, from that locality, with a very fine catch of channel cat, and also a large "taker" of very fine fish during the past week, by numerous parties on the river. By the way is not this somewhat against the law on the subject?

At Solenberger's cigar store, on East Main street, was entered by burglars last night, but all the thief got for his trouble was two or three dollars in small change and perhaps a few cigars. It is probable he was scared off before selecting his booty, as a lot of pennies and stamps were with the money stolen. The thief was persistent in his attempt, crawling around the rear premises in a way that showed him pretty well acquainted with them, and lugging a step-ladder around to scale walls and reach holes to crawl through that otherwise were out of reach. Appearances are that the job was by one home talent, and that only one person was engaged.

PRODUCED THE EVIDENCE.

Words Failed, but When the Bottle Came Forth All Doubts Disappeared.

Old Judge McTeal, whom years ago the harvester gathered and stored away in the great barn of eternity, was one of Arkansas' first circuit-riders of the law. There were only two circuits in the state, and the log-houses in which the great and pettifogging attorneys assembled, were often a week's journey apart. The natives were all anxious to see a judge, believing him to be a man of great stature and intellect, from which but few scraps of information were kept hidden. McTeal was rather a small man, of modest complexion and a nose which seemed to have caught the lingering rays of an autumn sun.

One day while riding along toward Bent Shank court-house, he lost the "blazed trail," wandered for a time in the woods and finally came upon a small cabin built of round logs. He was in the act of drawing a long breath, preparatory to a lusty "hello," when he was startled by the swelling notes of a hymn which suddenly arose. Nothing more quickly revives the memory of sacred teachings, than a song of religious praise bursting upon an unexpected ear, and the judge being a man of orthodox faith, was thankful that in such a wild place he had found men who were endeavoring to walk in the footsteps of Peter and Paul. When he entered the congregation stopped singing and looked at him. The preacher, who stood with his elbows resting on a tall slab bench, gazed at him intently and said:

"Thar seems to be a disturbin' element in the fold. Stranger, what would you be your business?"

The judge, who was embarrassed to see that his presence had wrought such a change, replied that having lost his way he had come upon the house, and was finding that religious services were being held, had entered, glad of an opportunity to indulge his appetite of worship.

"We hafta be mighty keeful, podner," rejoined the preacher. "You must be a trueseeker after the straight an' narrow path, but then again, you must be a trueseeker after the truth. I don't like the way you've got yourself rigged up. We don't put on no style out here, an' we don't see why an honest man ought put on them sort of duds. What might be your business, podner?"

"I am the newly appointed judge of this circuit."

The preacher and the congregation laughed. The idea of such a small man being a judge was inconsistent with the people's preconceived estimate of such a dignitary.

"Look here, podner," said the preacher, throwing one leg over the bench, putting one hand under his chin, and showing off his whiskers until they pointed at the judge. "We ain't all professors of law, an' it must take us some time to calculate a o'clock of the sun, moon an' stars, but thar's a right smart sprinkle of 'oss sense amongst us. A judge, eh?"

Pulling back his whiskers, the preacher discharged a mouthful of ambler, and nodded at the judge as though he would clinch his last remark.

"Gentlemen, you are of course entitled to your own opinions," said the jurist, but we will waive all that aside. Please proceed with your devotional exercises."

"Yes," replied the preacher, "we are about through now."

"I hope that my presence has not caused you to give up a performance so laudable."

"Talks like a judge, dinged if he don't," said a red-headed deacon, slowly shaking his head, as though he was waiting between a continuation of disbelief, and a conviction that the judge had spoken the truth.

"Yes," replied the preacher, "but talk is easy. If I was to slick up a little an' go into a strange neighborhood an' give the folks a treat, my best of law would be why they'd think that I had writ a 'rhythmic or better speaker of the legislator."

Although the judge's pride to some extent suffered, yet the incredulity of the congregation amused him. "Parson," he said, "we will not discuss the question of whether or not I am a judge, for on an occasion of this kind, it really makes no difference. How is it, my good friend, that I see no women in the congregation?"

"Because thar ain't no women here, I reckon," rejoined the preacher.

"Very likely that is one of the reasons."

"An' another reason," continued the preacher, "is because they didn't come."

This logic was so convincing that the congregation laughed.

"Why did they not come?" asked the judge.

"Well, they had to stay at home an' take keer of the chillun. The wimmin folks don't need no preachin', for bless 'em, they are good enough without it."

"Well, gentlemen, as services are closed to-day, I do not think there is anything more to be said in taking something to drink. I have some excellent stuff here," continued the judge taking out a bottle.

"I'll jine you," said the preacher, throwing out a quid of tobacco. Turning up the bottle, he took a lingering "pull," and said:

"Ah, boys, blamed if I don't believe he is a judge."

Turning up the bottle again, and hesitating some time before he took it down, he wiped his mouth on his coat-sleeve, and declared that "Boys, blamed if I don't know it."

"Pass the evidence this way," said the deacon. "Ah!"—after a protracted upward gaze—"he's got the proof. All that want to be satisfied, just come to the mourners' bench. Nobody but a judge could take this sort of liquor."

The entire congregation becoming repentant, crowded around the mourners' bench; and, as a hymn broke forth the judge was lifted from the floor and borne upon the shoulders of the ardent worshippers. All the boys assisted in finding the blazed trail. "Nevy change that time," said the judge in speaking of the event, "have I found a church where I was held in such high esteem?"—Arkansas Traveler.

How to Dodge Financial Depressions.

"They talk of hard times," he said, as he bought his railroad ticket for a town in Michigan, "but the truth is that we have too many men in business who are poor managers."

"Yes, man, something in that."

"Now look at my case," he continued, as he stuffed a wad of greenbacks in his pocket. "A year ago I had a large wheelbarrow factory. The hard times came on and wheelbarrows went to the dogs. Did I sit down and lament and groan? No, my friend. I went to the machinery, up to the floors, and I opened a riding academy and cleared $700 in four months."

"Then the riding mania played out," he continued, as he lighted a twenty-five cent cigar, "and down went the floor and up went the sign of 'Skating Rink.' Up to the first of December I had cleared $900. The skating craze is about played, and I am here in New York to secure forty pretty waiter girls for my new beer-garden, and I'll clear a thousand dollars before March. All in management, sir—all in knowing how to dodge the financial depressions!"—Wall Street News.

The Japanese dentist performs all his operations of tooth-drawing with the thumb and forefinger of one hand, and thus he never terrifies his patients with an array of steel instruments. The skill necessary to do this is only acquired by long practice. But once it is obtained the operator is able to extract about half a dozen teeth in thirty seconds without once removing his fingers from the patient's mouth. The dentist's education commences with the pulling out of pegs that have been pressed into soft wood; it ends with the drawing of hard pegs which have been driven into an oak plank with a mallet. It is said that no human jaw can resist the delicate but powerful manipulation of the Japanese dentist.
